Papp Logistics: Employer of the future

Papp Logistics has been recognized as an „Employer of the Future“ – this has now been confirmed by the seal of the German Innovation Institute for Sustainability and Digitalization.

Anyone looking for the „right“ employer often has a hard time: The options for job seekers and trainees are more varied today than ever before. With so much on offer in the job market, finding the right employer that is a real fit can be stressful and a long process.

The search is made easier if, even before sending the application documents, you can be sure that the future employer meets certain criteria and expectations and that not only is the vocational training or the job suitable and fun, but also that current topics such as digitization and sustainability are given high priority in the company.

These points are represented by the „Employer of the Future“ seal, which offers guidance to people looking for vocational training or a new job and is regarded as a mark of quality for the employer. Papp Logistics may now convince with this award.
